

American Airlines Announces New Winter Routes from Miami

(Courtesy of Donald Wood, TravelPulse)

Image: American Airlines plane (Photo Credit: American Airlines)

American Airlines announced seven new domestic routes and one brand-new international destination from Miami International Airport this winter.

Starting September 3, American will become the only carrier in the United States flying nonstop from Miami to Governor's Harbour, Bahamas, operating twice weekly on Embraer E175 aircraft.

The airline is also expanding its winter schedule from Miami to Latin America and the Caribbean, averaging more than 140 peak-day departures to more than 70 destinations.

"With a more than 30 year-history at Miami International Airport, American is proud to serve as the hometown airline, providing our customers with an unparalleled network that includes unique destinations like Governor's Harbor, Bahamas; Anguilla; and Sacramento, California," American Vice President Juan Carlos Liscano said.

The destinations with expanded service this winter from Florida include Anguilla; Barranquilla, Colombia; Bridgetown, Barbados; Cancun, Mexico; Cartagena, Colombia; Liberia and San Jose, Costa Rica; St. Maarten; and Tortola, British Virgin Islands.

"Next winter we're proud to continue to invest in the undisputed gateway to Latin America and the Caribbean, a true point of pride for our more than 14,000 locally-based team members," Liscano continued.

As for the new domestic routes from Miami, they include year-round daily service to Portland, Oregon, and Sacramento, California, as well as seasonal weekly service to Buffalo, New York; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Lexington, Kentucky; Wichita, Kansas; and Wilmington, North Carolina. With more than 380 peak-day flights this winter, American solidifies its position as the largest airline at Miami International Airport, serving 150 destinations.