

BLNR Treasurer

Ola Aje

After a rewarding career at Boeing leading engineering strategy, lab & flight test, 787 manufacturing operations, and program management across BCA, BGS, and ET&T, Ola took early retirement to begin his next chapter. Looking back, he feels fortunate for the opportunity to lead several key initiatives, including Design Practices and Insourcing programs. In the wake of the 737 MAX tragedy, he was tapped to help establish the knowledge management processes, tools, practices, and trainings used by engineering teammates across the globe. He also had the opportunity to lead the Insourcing program in BGS, where he guided a global team to establish a new part business that used reverse engineering to expand BGS aftermarket reach. Today, he is a financial advisor and coach. He helps people plan for retirement and become better stewards of their money. He is married to his wife Grace, and together they are raising three wonderful teenage children.
