Mendelssohn Violin Concerto Masterwork Series

Tianyi Lu, conducting
Arabella Steinbacher, violin
Seattle Symphony

Violinist Arabella Steinbacher takes on Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, beloved for its brilliant virtuosity and finesse. R. Strauss' early tone poem Aus Italien evokes the charm of Italy, at last receiving its Seattle Symphony debut. Tianyi Lu conducts fellow New Zealander Salina Fisher's Tupaia, inspired by the Polynesian navigator who aided James Cook's Pacific voyage.

Carmina Burana

MASTERWORKS SERIES

Xian Zhang, conductor

Jana McIntyre, soprano

Barry Banks, tenor

Hugh Russell, baritone

Northwest Boychoir

Seattle Symphony Chorale

O Fortuna! So begins Carl Orff's famous work for chorus and orchestra, Carmina Burana. But there's more to this epic masterpiece than the thunderous opening chorus, known far and wide for its use in Hollywood films and advertisements. Drawn from medieval poems that vividly celebrate the secular topics of love, lust, excess and indulgence, Carmina Burana spans the full range of musical styles, ranging from the power and majesty of full orchestra and chorus to the delicate intimacy of a single human voice.

Terry Myers Band Leader
Tommy Dorsey Orchestra

In big band history, the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra is recognized as one of the best all-around dance bands. Jazz trombonist Tommy Dorsey led his band to 17 number one hits in the 1930s and 1940s, and a young Frank Sinatra cut his teeth singing with this legendary band. Now, under the baton of clarinetist Terry Myers, the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra brings that classic, sentimental big band sound to the Benaroya Hall stage. Presented as part of the Seattle Pops Series.

ADAPTATION National Geographic Live

David Robertson, conductor
Noah Geller, first violin
Seattle Symphony

Explore the remarkable ways people around the world are adapting to a changing climate with environmental anthropologist and filmmaker Alizé Carrère. Dive into the South Pacific waters of Vanuatu, where islanders are using innovative techniques to combat the effects of climate change and outbreaks of crown-of-thorns starfish that threaten the surrounding reefs. In Bangladesh, discover how farmers in low-lying areas facing sea level rise and flooding are reviving an old agricultural technique—floating gardens—that has inspired floating schools, libraries, hospitals, and playgrounds. And travel to the mountainous desert of Ladakh in northern India to glimpse giant ice pyramids, or “ice stupas,” invented by a Ladakhi teacher and engineer to help the community adapt to global warming. Through her work documenting these stories, Carrère offers a hopeful look at the resilience, perseverance, and innovation of humankind under even the most difficult of conditions.

Rachmaninov Piano Concertos Nos. 1 & 2 Rachmaninov Piano Concertos Nos. 3 & 4 EXCLUSIVES

Katarina Wincor, conductor
Dominic Cheli, piano (Rachmaninov 1 & 2)
Alexander Malofeev, piano (Rachmaninov 1 & 2)
Rémi Geniet, piano (Rachmaninov 3 & 4)
Albert Cano Smit, piano (Rachmaninov 3 & 4)
Seattle Symphony

One of the great pianists of his day, Sergey Rachmaninov poured his encyclopedic knowledge of the instrument into his compositions, creating some of the most challenging works in the piano repertoire — four piano concertos that are a tour-de-force of pianistic effects and require jaw-dropping technique to perform.

We celebrate the 150th anniversary of Rachmaninov's birth, performing his full cycle of piano concertos over two nights amid the stunning acoustics of Benaroya Hall. On April 27, pianists Dominic Cheli and Alexander Malofeev start our celebration with Rachmaninov's First and Second Concertos. On April 29, pianists Rémi Geniet and Albert Cano Smit complete the set with Rachmaninov's Third and Fourth Concertos.
