Stravinsky The Rite of Spring

SYMPHONIC SERIES

Peter Oundjian conductor
Jan Lisiecki piano
Seattle Symphony

Uproar greeted Stravinsky's Rite of Spring, ushering in a musical revolution with its depiction of violence and Pagan ritual. The Seattle Symphony is proud to have co-commissioned a new work by Brian Raphael Nabors. Drawing inspiration from Maya Angelou's writings, he celebrates the dawn of a new day of peace making. And Mozart's sublime 22nd Piano Concerto strikes a balance between storms and blue skies, with Jan Lisiecki back on our stage by popular demand.

Holst The Planets: An HD Odyssey

Symphonic Series

Xian Zhang conductor
Steven Banks saxophone
Seattle Symphony Chorale
Seattle Symphony

Gustav Holst, a keen student of astrology, seized on the different characters assigned to our planets to compose his masterpiece. Each planet brings different feelings and startling effects, from Mars' shattering depiction of war to Neptune as it drifts away into space and ethereal voices fade into silence. Breathtaking high-definition imagery from NASA showcases our solar system's heavenly bodies.

 THE JOHN & GINNY MEISENBACH FOUNDATION | SEATTLE POPS SERIES

Dr. Ericka Woolsey marine biologist

Once a year, Australia's most famous reef turns into a snow globe as millions of coral polyps reproduce to send the next generation afloat. This incredible display disguises a harsh truth: the Great Barrier Reef is under attack. More than half of the coral here has died, with climate change bleaching many parts of this vast landscape.

Life on the Move | National Geographic Live

Alexander Shelley conductor
Esther Yoo violin
Seattle Symphony

This concert is about the music that comes when we long for home Dvořák's "New World" Symphony captures the energetic elements of music he heard in America, dosed with a heartfelt nostalgia for this homeland. The result is one of the warmest celebrations of looking forwards and back. It's no surprise that a recording of this symphony even made its way onto Apollo XI. Raymond Yiu's Violin Concerto meditates on exile inspired by the life of composer Ma Sicong, who fled China to build a new life in the U.S.
